The Scottish Crop Research Institute (SCRI)[™] is a major international centre for research on agricultural, horticultural and industrial crops important to northern Britain, the rest of the UK and the World, and on the underlying processes common to all plants.

SCRI aims to increase knowledge in the basic biological sciences; to improve crop quality and utilisation by the application of conventional and molecular genetical techniques and novel agronomic practices; and to develop environmentally benign methods of protecting crops from depredations by pests, pathogens and weeds.
